Hated "Posthumous Generosity."

The noted lawyer took a deep interest in various charities, to which in his lifetime he gave from one-fourth to one-half his income. In his will he expressed his dislike for "posthumous generosity." He said: "I make no charitable bequests. While I lived I have given what I thought to be suitable. I do not wish to debar my children of the pleasure of using in charity such part as they see fit of what comes to them from me."

For many years Mr. Parsons maintained his property at Curtisville, N. Y. as a fresh air home. He expressed the desire that it be used for the same purpose as long as his children maintain the property, and he empowered them to convey it to any society. Counsel for the Parsons estate notified the

DEATH A SHOCK TO ARTISTS HERE

Body of Noted Illustrator To Be Cremated at London

To-day.

[By Cable to The Tribune.] London, July 26.—The tragic death of Cyrus Cuneo, the famous American artist, has shocked the entire artist community of London. Cuneo was a man of wonderful personality and of extraordinary powerful physique. He was almost as proud of his boxing prowess as he was of his art.

A few days ago he was dancing a ball with a nurse who recently hattended a case of blood poisonir She happened to scratch him slightly on the nose. Two days later Cuneo was stricken with blood poisoning. Despite superhuman attempts to save his life, he died three days afterward. His body will be cremated to-morrow.
